WITHDRAWS

From Congressional Race in
The Interest of Party
Harmony

Deeply Regrets the Electorate Will Not Have Opportunity to Express Itself Upon The Bonus Bill

The following letter from Vernon
Charles A. Hardin to William Vernon Richardson, Danville, and Richardson's reply are explanatory.

Harrodsburg, Ky.,

July 3, 1922.

Hon. Vernon Richardson,
Danville, Ky.

My dear Vernon:

I learned by telephone you are not going to Richmond today to meet
Mr. Gilbert and this upon my suggestion conveyed by Mr. Richardson.

I am very grateful to you for so much consideration as I understand you had prepared a speech and had intended meeting him. I sincerely hope you will have no reason to regret your action. No one knows better than myself that I am under personal obligation to you which I can never repay. Your fine loyalty to my interests and the warmth of your friendship can never be forgotten and I want you to know I stand always ready to prove my appreciation. You are finely qualified by exceptional advantages and legislative experience to represent this district in Congress. Your honor, your integrity, your dependable fidelity to your party and commonwealth proven by a life of devoted service merits recognition. Your courage to make a telling fight and your ability to look after your interests when the fight is on, cannot be questioned. I say this much to make it clear that in the talk I have had with you and in my request that you refrain from meeting the Hon.
Mr. Gilbert at this time was not reflecting a personal attitude.

As Chairman of the Democratic organization in this State I have witnessed the getting together of our forces, the antagonistic elements of our party composed and the democracy of the state as I see it now marching shoulder to shoulder with high courage and perfect morale and looking with confidence to the future.
This is as it should be, and I fear a race for the Democratic nomination
at this time under all the circumstances in this district would be dis-organizing for the Democrats and heartening to the Republicans. A campaign between you and Hon. Mr.
Gilbert would be waged with vigor and courage, issues would be made and feeling aroused and I fear the party's position in the State and district would be weakened. If such would be the case I know no one who would regret it more than yourself;
I know you well enough to know you would readily make a sacrifice
of self interest when your party called.
I beg you to consider it is not my purpose to dictate but merely to give you my opinion as Chairman of the Democratic Party in Kentucky and if you should think differently
I will know you are sincere and will honor your opinion. Whatever you do I am sure will be in the interest,
as you see it, of the Democratic party.

Yours faithfully,

CHAS. A. HARDIN,

Chairman.

Danville, Ky., July 10, 1922.
Hon. Chas. A. Hardin,
Chairman Democratic Committee,
Harrodsburg, Ky.

My Dear Judge:

I trust that you will pardon the seeming indifference to your kind letter of the 3rd, instant, but I have been weighing the matters contained therein most thoroughly, before answering, therefore the delay.

I, of course, realize that you are my warm, personal friend and am deeply appreciative of the spirit which prompted your letter. I know that you hold the interests of the Democratic party higher than the interests of even yourself or friends, and this is as it should be, so long as you are at the helm. I want to thank you most graciously for the confidence in which you hold me in and for the compliments, though unmerited, you paid me in your very friendly letter.

It was not so much the honor of going to Congress that I sought to enter the fight for the nomination,
as it was a principle that I had long since stood for and that was my vigorous opposition to the proposed Bonus Bill. I am sure that the nation's tax is already too high and such measures as that and the like, should

NO PEACE IN SIGHT GREAT

Violence Increases All Over

Country

Rail Officials Refuse to Confer

Chicago, July 12—While flatly refusing to meet the leaders of 400,000
striking shopmen to discuss peace proposals, railway executives tonight
left open the door for a settlement of the strike through the United States Railroad Labor Board.

Immediately after reaching an agreement with the heads of the "big four" brotherhoods not to require their members to do any of the work of striking shopmen, the executives began consideration of a peace program submitted to them by Ben W.
Hooper, chairman of the labor board,
after a conference with B. M. Jewell,
head of the striking shopmen.

Their answer, in the form of a letter addressed to Mr. Hooper, who said that he was acting in a personal capacity in initiating the negotiations, asserted that the strike was called in defiance of the board, and therefore any conference between the executives and the strikers
would not be "permissible or tolerable," as it would place the carriers in the position of seeking to find means to subvert the decision of the board.

A prompt recall of the strike
order," the letter added, however,
"would permit the resumption of former methods of conference and permit the consideration of any matters which representatives of employees might desire to submit."

Raw Deal, Says Walton

It was right for Shelton Saufley, of the Richmond Register, to get the blue tie for being the handsome man at the K. P. A. meeting at Crab Orchard Springs, for of course he was, but we are sure to the quick because Bob Elkin, of the Lancaster Record, got the booby prize for being the ugliest. It was an unjust decision and award, which should be wiped out with gore, should an apology be not forthcoming? Whoever heard of an ugly Elkin? Such a proposition is preposterous.—Interior Journal.

Had Ed Walton, of Stanford, John Barry, of New Haven, Senator Gul-don, of New Castle and B. F. Forey, of Ashland, attended the Press Association, as they should have, the result of the above contest might have been the same, yet competition
would have been much keener, to say the least of it.

be held in abeyance.

To show that it was not a policy,
but a principle you will recall that the Hon. King Swope and I had a wordy war upon this very topic. He attacked me in the Congressional Record and I answered as best I could in the Danville Messenger and the Kentucky Advocate. I was championing the bill and I opposed it. My strenuous opposition to this measure was the sole incentive for my entrance into this fight. I knew I was getting in late, too late, in fact, to cover the eleven counties in the district as I wanted to. Then I felt that my years of experience in Washington amply fitted me to render a real service to the district but that is beside the question now.

I submitted the speech I had written to be delivered in Richmond to you and other friends and you, as well as they, saw a most bitter fight in prospect and you and they felt that it would be inimical to the party's interests, so rather than do anything that would hurt the Democratic party, I would forego my fight for the principle involved, hoping that time or a Presidential veto would save the day, therefore I would prefer to efface myself than to hurt the party—the party must go on, but we, the chips may fall by the wayside. So, out of respect to party harmony, I am going to take the advice you gave both in letter and by word of mouth,
and withdraw, and I will be found ever fighting for the party that you and I love so well. I do this with a bit of regret, too, for I should love to have had an expression of the electorate of this district upon the mooted bonus bill.

May I not in this letter thank you and those who so kindly proffered support to me. I shall ever be grateful and will court an early opportunity to repay for the innumerable offers of aid, of warm friendship and loyal, cordial support. Thanking you, I remain,

Ever loyal to the Democratic party,

W. Vernon Richardson.

CHAUTAUQUA

Opened Big Tent Yesterday

FINE PROGRAM

The Lancaster Chautauqua opened its big tent yesterday afternoon for a five-day engagement with the Nevin
Concert Company, followed last night
with the same company and Mr.
Franklin Caveny, famous cartoonist and clay modeler. The programs were delightful ones and the crowd which practically filled the tent was pleased, as evidenced by the hearty and spontaneous applause which followed each number.

The program this year includes some of the greatest lecturers on the American platform today. Today's afternoon program includes the Grand Concert, Gretchen—Cox and Company, with a lecture tonight by Edward Amherst Ott. Friday afternoon and evening, Lecture-recital by Stephani Schultze and the popular concert by the National Male Quartette. Saturday afternoon a lecture,
"The Pacific Triangle" by Sydney Greenbie, followed that evening by the delightful comedy drama—
"Friendly Enemies." The fifth and last day, next Monday, is another popular concert, by the Kublick Company and Bernice Van. The same company will be heard that night, followed by a lecture, "The Wonders of Burbank," by Dr. H. A. Adrian.

Mr. W. M. Young, the "seven day man" arrived in Lancaster last Thursday morning, and has done
some good service for the local committee and made many warm friends
during his stay with us.

The superintendent in charge, Mr.
V. T. Smith, whose home is in Lexington, Ill., arrived yesterday morning. Mr. Smith has been connected with the home office of the Redpath
for a number of years, and before entering this work was superintendent of schools in his home county for some time. He informs us that the present program is one of the best the Redpath people have ever put out and that at places where he has been this season, he has had no trouble in rebooking for a return another year.

The sale of season tickets continue with good success and a settlement with the company will be made this afternoon. The tent was filled last evening and everybody pleased with the program.

DATE TO BE FIXED

For Special Service for Christian Education

A call has been issued to the Presbyterian pastors of Kentucky to fix date for special service in behalf of the movement for Christian education. As soon as possible the date will be announced.

Encouraging letters have been coming into headquarters, 109 East Broadway, Louisville, from every section of the State, not only from Presbyterians but from other denominations congratulating the united commission on the proposed campaign. Former students of Centre College, the Louisville Seminary and Kentucky College for Women are offering to aid the work.

While the financial goal of the campaign is to secure $1,000,000 for Christian education—it must not be forgotten that other results will flow from the successful completion of such a campaign. Among the by-products of the campaign, the director, Mr. McGill, mentions the following: A larger Presbyterian Consciousness; a Wider Presbyterian Fellowship; an increasing interest in Christian Education; the Development of Christian Benevolence; Life Enlistment for a Whole Time Christian Service; an increased number of workers for the Local Church and the Promotion of the Prayer Spirit.

Rev. Tinder to Move To Lexington

Rev. F. M. Tinder has tendered his resignation to the congregation of the North Middletown Christian church, and will go to Lexington to reside. The resignation will take effect the latter part of August, he having accepted the pastorate of the Providence Christian church in Fayette county. Mr. Tinder has been with the North Middletown church for thirteen years was the pastor of the Christian church of this city, being one of the most widely known ministers in Kentucky.

FIVE BIG EVENINGS

Paint Lick Chautauqua Opens

There Next Monday Evening With Delightful

Program

The progressive citizens of Paint Lick are certainly to be congratulated upon their efforts in securing the Southern Chautauqua for that city, beginning there next Monday evening and lasting five evenings.
The repertoire for the five days is all that could be asked for and it is hoped that those who are responsible for these delightful entertainments,
will meet with the hearty support
and co-operation of her entire citizenry.

The first evening opens with the Chicago Concert Company and lecture, "Immortality of Influence" by George L. Barker, a platform orator of twenty years service.

The second evening The Serenaders Male Quartette will entertain.
The versatility of the individual members of this quartette and the variety of good music they offer far exceeds anything ever offered of this character.

The third evening includes a lecture, "The Joy of The Job" by E.
Jefferson Gardner. After hearing him you will feel stronger, burdens will be lighter and the future seem brighter. This same evening appears the Gerhardt Entertainers who will make you forget worry. That's their mission in life. They have scattered fun and optimism through almost every state in the Union.

The fourth evening, America's greatest comedy drama, "It Pays to Advertise," will hold the boards.
This is when you check your cares
and troubles, worries and grouches
at the entrance of the big tent and settle down for an evening of laughs,
laughs, laughs.

The fifth and last evening comes the Union Pageant, the Piano-Accordion Concert, and a lecture, "The Measure of Man" by that noted orator,
A. M. Rietzel. The entire program from start to finish is full of entertainment, enlightenment and the price charged for the season tickets is worth the price of any single admission.

Many from Lancaster will take in several evenings at the Paint Lick chautauqua. May it continue to prosper.

Miss Syler

To be Retained as County Demonstration Agent

It will be good news to many, in fact all who have known of her good work in Garrard county, to learn that Miss Joyce Syler, our County Demonstration Agent will be retained for another year to further pursue the splendid work which she has launched throughout the county
during the past two years.

The fiscal court met last Friday and unanimously appropriated sufficient funds from the county treasury to carry on this work. The County Board of Education had already appropriated $300 toward her salary, for it had seen the result of her services over the school districts of the county and know her real value and a work that could not be measured by dollars and cents. Miss Syler has hundreds and hundreds of friends throughout the county, who are co-operating with her in this work, and who will now take renewed energy, knowing that she is to be retained for another year, and we hope indefinitely.

Hurt

The remains of Mrs. Sarah C. Hurt, relict of the late John H. Hurt, were brought to Lancaster last Tuesday, from her late home in Ft. Leitchfield, Ill., and interred in the Lancaster cemetery, Rev. E. B. Bourland officiating. Mrs. Hurt is well remembered in Garrard county, where she was born about 69 years ago, being a daughter of the late Hop Thurman.
She was a good, kind, indulgent mother and a devout member of the Christian church, her membership for many years being at Fair View. She is survived by one son, Frazier Hurt, who made his home in Lancaster for many years and is now in business in Ft. Leitchfield, Ill. He together with his wife and son accompanied the remains here. Owing to pressing business he was forced to return yesterday, but Mrs. Hurt and son will remain for several weeks, visiting her sister, Mrs. R. H. Batson and other relatives here and at Crab Orchard.

GOOD

ATTENDANCE

Chamber of Commerce Hold
Interesting Session

COMMITTEES NAMED

A good attendance marked the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce last Friday evening at its club rooms and much business was disposed of. It was the first meeting under the new organization since the election of officers a few weeks ago.

After the reading of the minutes of the last regular meeting reports of committees were heard and many communications read, which brought up some interesting discussions.

Secretary Abbott read a detailed report of the activities of the Chamber of Commerce and what had been accomplished during the past year under its assistance. It was enthusiastically received by all those present and on motion it was ordered spread on the minutes of the body and a copy furnished the Central Record for publication. This report will be published in full in a few weeks.

The meeting of the Central Kentucky Blue Grass League, of commercial organizations will be held in Lancaster Friday, July 28th and a committee was named to arrange a program suitable for the occasion and to extend an invitation to the other organizations.

A luncheon will be given at the Kengarian hotel and plates will be prepared for one hundred or more.
The entertainment committee will look after all the details and it is expected that practically every member of the local organization will attend this luncheon.

More details and the committees named at the last meeting here, will be given in the next issue of the Record.

Higher Standard Must Be Met by Applicants

New requirements for applicants for county school superintendencies were adopted by the State Board of Education. The requirements are more stringent than the old rules and will require a much higher standard of education than heretofore. Superintendents appointed after July 1,
the board decided, must be more than 24 years of age and must hold a State diploma or certificate from the State Board of examiners, a degree of bachelor of arts in education or bachelor of science in education from the University of Kentucky or a standard approved college or must have an advanced certificate issued by the university, a State normal or a standard approval college. They must also have specialized in rural school administration and must stand
an examination before the State board in the history of education;
Kentucky school laws, including the elementary courses of study and high school course of study and in school administration including methods and management. They must make a grade of not less than 35 per cent on each subject. In addition to the examination the applicants must have had five years' experience as superintendent, supervisor or teacher.

Speaking of Plums

Shipton Estes brought to this office
a twig from his plum tree that is literally alive with the luscious fruit.
We are glad to exhibit these specimens of half-ripe fruit, but the editor
and office force would enjoy them much more if they were ripe and placed in a well filled basket. Future exhibitors, please note.

Pleasant Grove

Revival Continues

der the leadership of Rev. M. A.
Hart and Miss Katherine Warriner,

day night. The great messages of Bro. Hart and the inspiring singing of Miss Warriner are worth hearing.
Come over and enjoy the feast of good things. Pastor.

Great Fair

The Stanford boys are leaving no
stone unturned to have the best fair
in Kentucky on their local grounds, in the beautiful woodland on the Lancaster road near Stanford.

The premium list which is just out, shows $2,500 in premiums and this alone insures a large entry list in all classes.

Stalls are already being engaged,
yet the big event does not take place
until August 10th, 11th, and 12th.
Premium lists can be had by calling at the Record office.

Murder Will Out

(Editorial)

The Clayhole Political murder cases will not down. In the light of recent revelations,
in order to save the honor of the state a most searching investigation of the facts of the murders and the trials that have resulted, and have failed to result, require the most rigid investigation. We call attention specially to the readers of the Record to consider this important condition in our state. Republicans, Democrats, men and women of all political faith should investigate these cases and let public opinion form a just verdict. It is hard to believe that a conspiracy could have been formed by a number of partisans, to go into Clayhole precinct in Breath-itt county to break up or prevent an election, or that these men in this conspiracy should go there from other parts of Breathitt and adjoining counties armed, twelve or fourteen strong and commit wholesale murder. Yet that is the charge and the men were there armed.
It is admitted that these men did destroy the ballots after the murder. It is a fact that as a result of the affair more than a score of infant children were made orphans and four or five women are widows, not to mention the five murders and a number of wounded. It is hard to believe that the few survivors of the conspiracy, by official manipulation, should now be in prison, convicted of the crime, that the real conspirators had committed. Yet such are the charges. Mr.
Desha Breckenridge, editor of the Lexington Herald, relating some of the alleged facts relative to the trials of the surviving victims of the fight, called upon the presiding judge of the Boyd Circuit Court to which district the cases had been transferred to explain
some of the unusual incidents of the trial. Instead of the requested explanation a suit for $50,000.00 in damages for libel was the result. This proceeding by Judge Halbert will not satisfy the people of Kentucky who pay him for his services as Judge and whose servant he is. He will be compelled to make the answer,
the final answer, which will prove more embarrassing to the Judge than the damage suit is expensive or troublesome to the Lexington editor.

Baptist Church Notes

Despite the heat last Sunday the attendance at the Sunday School was splendid, with the largest collection in several months. One of the classes pledged a tenth of their earnings for last week as an offering Sunday, and the result was not only gratifying, but a practical illustration of what would happen if the whole church would agree to tithe their income.

The Junior Union meets at 6:15
for their service, and the Seniors at 7 o'clock. Miss Lillian Estes is President of the Juniors and Eugene
Cochran is President of the Seniors.
These officers are doing their part faithfully and well, and are entitled to the cordial support of every young person in the church. The presence of more of the older members at their services would be an encouragement to the young people in their work.

The services next Sunday as follows. Sunday School at 10 o'clock;
preaching at 11; topic—"God's Will on Earth as it is in Heaven." The evening services will be held in the tent on the school grounds at 7:45.
An earnest invitation is extended to all to attend our services.

Why cuss the warm weather?
The Lord made it, and what is good enough for Him ought to be good enough for us.

If we didn't have the warm weather with its bright sunshine we wouldn't have any crops to feed us, and if we didn't have any feed we wouldn't long be here, and if we were not here we would miss all of the wonderful things that are created for our special benefit.

The warm weather is all right—perhaps a little uncomfortable at times, but quite necessary to our material well being.

Make the best of what the Lord gives you and you won't feel like cussing.

In one of our great cities there is a family composed of the parents, one little boy about six years of age, and a baby. The husband is a musician, and it is possible you have listed to his banjo on your Victrola.

Recently a number of friends were invited to a Sunday dinner. A sudden hush ensued. Neither of the parents are over zealous attendants at church, and the husband can even swear like a pirate. The guests were plainly puzzled.

Then a tiny voice was heard, asking God to bless the food, and the parents, and the baby brother, and the friends who were guests of the home.

Levity? You could have heard a pin drop.

Do it now. Make that your rule of life and success will be assured.

Many of the failures in the business world are caused by short sightedness and procrastination. Putting it off until tomorrow means that in many cases it is never done, and it is the things that are not done that cause the receipts to dwindle until a business is eventually wrecked.

It is just as easy to do it today as it is to put it off until the last minute. It is far more pleasant and decidedly more satisfactory.

The world is full of physical and commercial wrecks. The man who is a physical has-been couldn't go to the doctor in time, and the fellow who is down at the heels financially depended upon a tomorrow that never comes.

Do it now.

The mine war horror of Illinois still lingers in the minds of some people, although a majority have already forgotten.

The first two or three days everybody was horrified, and talking, and condemning.

Then interest commenced to wane, and today it is only a memory, and tomorrow it will be as dead as its victims.

Our emotions are aroused suddenly, and subside almost as quickly. There are too many things to remember, and it is easier to forget.

The Illinois atrocity contains a lesson, but people are too busy or indifferent to retain it in memory.

Some harm and no good is the only result.

The bond market is on the toboggan, and the uninitiated are unloading at a sacrifice.

That is what the initiated are looking for. They want bonds but they want them at a low price.

A bond that is worth buying is worth holding until maturity. If it is not worth holding it should not be bought.

certain people can only become rich by making other people poorer.

Hold onto your bonds and don't be the goat.

The Southern Chautauqua will be in Paint Lick all next week. It promises to be better than last year. Come and help fill the tent. All proceeds over expenses will go to help the Graded School.

Misses Marie Ledford and Fay Ward left last week for an extended visit to Mrs. A. F. Starns, at Greenville, Tenn., and from there to Asheville, N. C., where they will visit Mrs. Caywood and Mrs. Ed. Williams.

The Christian church has taken on a new coat of paint on the inside, and also a new carpet, which greatly improves the looks of the church. The members are getting ready for a big revival in August. Rev. Purvis will conduct the services.

Paint Lick defeated White Station team by the score of 8 to 3 in a well played game on the former's grounds on last Saturday. Beazley pitching for Paint Lick was the feature of the game, he being exceptionally strong with men on bases, and but for 3 costly errors should have had a shut out game.

At Logsdon's store there has been a guessing contest on soap, which closed Saturday, J. V. Scott and Robert Metcalf tying as first, which was 50 bars of soap, so each were given 25 bars. Mrs. Isaac Metcalf drew second, which was 35 bars of soap. Third prize was 15 bars, which was drawn by Mrs. O. L. Hammack, Hubert Ralston and Jake Browning, who tied in third.

Friends of Miss Joyce Syler are pleased to know she will be with us another year, especially the Paint Lick Poultry Club, who are just getting started and we know all the clubs of the county are just as proud of Miss Syler as we are. She never tires of helping and is always ready and willing to hunt up some point that will help or be of benefit to her club members. Paint Lick Poultry Club only have about 25 or 30 members, but hope to double their membership in another year. The club will meet this week and will select places to cull poultry next month. Miss Syler will have an experienced man here from the Experiment Station so you see what a help she is to our community in that respect. We want to thank the court and all who helped us to obtain Miss Syler for another year. We think her work will progress so nicely this year that there will be no doubt of her staying another.

Man's Hidden Fear.
The look on a man's face when a sympathetic woman says she "understands" him probably is caused by a hidden fear that maybe she does.—St. Joseph News-Press.

Flies Carried by the Wind?
House flies have a considerable range of flight. Some that were dusted with finely powdered red chalk and afterwards released were taken within less than 24 hours in flytraps six miles away. Observations at Rebecca shoals off the coast of Florida seem to show that flies came down the wind from Cuba 96 miles away.—Youth's Companion.

HIS MISTAKE

By JACK LAWTON

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

It was not the rector's fault that he became an eavesdropper. The two who provoked his disapproval had taken the vacated seats opposite his at the restaurant table.

The woman, decidedly pretty, he remembered having been at service the past Sunday. He recalled having wondered, even under the thrall of his studied address, whom she might be and where she had come from. She was not, he was certain, a resident of Pembroke.

The man who so courteously removed the charming woman's fur cloak and placed it across the back of her chair, was familiar but unknown. Rev. Peter Brooks passed him frequently in the streets. He recalled, now, the fact that Mrs. Meader, the man's wife, was said to be out of town. Peter Brooks was just deciding that Mr. Meader's companion was in all probability a visiting relative when that little lady shattered his illusion.

"This is better than working in that stuffy office, isn't it?" she said.

Jack Meader nodded with a smile. "Yet if I had not coaxed you out," he told her, "you would still be at your desk. Now, won't you let me order for you something very good and extravagant?"

The woman held out her hands with a pretty gesture of surrender. "You are so kind," she agreed.

"Typing," Jack smiled, "or working overtime does not seem to trouble your happy patience. What a joyous old place this world would be, Eleanor Gail, if all women were like you."

"What an impossible place, rather," she laughingly replied. "I will tell you a secret. Every one conspires to spoil me—to make things easy for me, yourself, for instance; consider the amount of work from which you relieve me."

"This afternoon," Jack Meader said, "you are to be forced into a holiday. I was fortunate in obtaining tickets to the Shakespearean matinee."

Eleanor Gail regarded him over her frozen fruit. "Tickets?" she asked.

Meader nodded. "I think I deserve a holiday, too," he replied.

Uncomfortably Peter Brooks moved in his chair. So it was another case of going out to lunch with the stenographer. All right, perhaps, to one who had not heard to what lengths frail little Mrs. Meader was obliged to economize. An extravagant luncheon Jack Meader had suggested to his companion, and undoubtedly he had ordered such, while tickets for the Shakespearean matinee could not be procured cheaply. Reverend Peter cleared his throat.

"Mr. Meader, I believe?" he said, pleasantly. "I wanted to inquire for your wife. She is away? I understood that she was in poor health."

Jack Meader stared; the stare seemed almost hostile.

"She is in poor health," he answered.

Rev. Peter Brooks walked thoughtfully homeward. Here was a case to be dealt with. There was in the present day altogether too little regard for appearance's sake. He intended to make this one laxity the subject for a sermon. So intent was he on his theme that he had almost passed his bishop without recognition. That important and smiling personage greeted him cordially. "Hello, Peter; where are you hurrying? Time so valuable that you can't spare me a moment? I'd like your advice in a matter."

Peter wheeled about, following his superior across the street and into an impressive old house.

"You were saying?" he absently asked the prelate.

"About that history of mine. Why the church should desire it I cannot understand; the fact remains. And they have engaged a clever historian, the thing is readable even to me."

The big man bent back smiling. Peter murmured congratulations. He was eager to be at his purposeful sermon. It occurred to him to discuss it with the wise man at his side; they were both in accord with the theme. Peter, his handsome head resting against the back of the bishop's favorite chair, hoped sternly that the charming and unconcerned sinner would be there to hear his sermon eloquently delivered. Then suddenly the resting head was lifted, for the object of his thought and worthy effort stood smiling in the doorway of the bishop's study, while the bishop himself arose to welcome her.

"Permit me, Miss Gail," he said, "to present Rev. Mr. Brooks, Miss Gail," the big man explained, "is very busy writing the history of a tire-some old man."

Eleanor Gail briskly removed coat and jaunty turban. "Mr. Meader," she explained to the bishop, "was determined that an afternoon of entertainment would rest our minds and refresh us for further work, but I overruled. I am anxious to finish my commission."

"Miss Gail," the bishop said, "has engaged Mr. Meader as her stenographer. Little Mrs. Meader and she it seems, were school friends."

Reverend Peter arose stiffly as though in acknowledgment of an introduction. His hand went out to Eleanor Gail, but in his eyes, instead, were apology and humbleness; and perhaps some deeper interest which only a woman may recognize.

"I hope to see you again," said Peter.

"I hope you will," smiled Eleanor.

Don't Ramble.

The rolling stone has a bad reputation. We should learn the art, which would seem to be very difficult these days, of staying at home. Travel can show us only the surface of things. It fills us with a large amount of misunderstanding. All history condemns the rolling stone. A change of climate and food is good for one, but on this continent we have all varieties of them which the most exacting taste may demand.—Irving Bacheller in April Delineator.

OF BEAD-TRIMMED CREPE

When you go in quest of a new blouse keep in mind two phrases—"crepe de chine" and "over the skirt," and in all the displays you will find the blouses repeating them. There are many simple over-the-skirt styles similar to the pretty blouse shown here, and they invite the seamstress to try her hand at blouse making. This is made of a colored crepe, with white in the collar and cuffs, ornamented with stitching of silk floss and trimmed with beads.

Firestone

GUM-DIPPED CORDS -and Their High Mileage Records

The high mileage records of Firestone Cords continue to emphasize the fact that Firestone methods are different and better. These records, steadily increasing in number and in mileage totals, justify the Firestone contention that there is one best way to build tires.

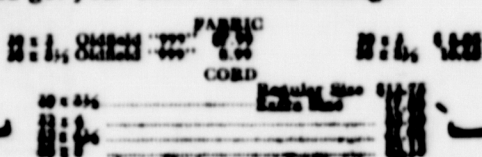

Among the primary sources of Firestone extra mileage is double gum-dipping—the saturation of the cord plies in a vat of liquid gum—thus coating each cord and virtually eliminating internal heat and friction.

Another is Firestone air bag curing, with its 200 pound pressure, which places every cord accurately and equalizes the tension.

By blending the rubbers of different plantations and types, and by tempering it before mixing, Firestone men add still more mileage.

Many cord tires are good—a few are better—Firestone users say one is best.

Those who have already experienced Firestone mileage, have stopped shopping and experimenting—they have made these cords standard equipment. Investigate your friends' success with Firestone Cords—and buy your next tire accordingly. Come in and get your share of extra mileage.

Her Smile Was to Come Off.

One Sunday evening I was out with my best beau. We first went to the show and then for a walk. When we were about three blocks from his home we met his father. My beau tried to hide, but his father saw him and took him home. I followed, and when they came to his house, I stood there and listened to him yelling. The next day at school I made fun of him, but he only smiled and said sweetly that mine was coming, because his father had told my father.—Chicago Journal.

Abnormality in Mankind.

Regardless of whether "genius is to madness close allied," eccentricities no doubt could be found in all great men. But if the truth were known would not something just a trifle abnormal be discovered in everybody? Is it not too much to expect that the brain should always be well balanced under the terrific strain to which modern conditions of life subject it? What a dull place the world would be if everybody always did the conventional thing!—Exchange.

Chosen as the emblem of our country, we have come to look upon the eagle as emblematical of protection from abroad.

The eagle might well be chosen as the emblem of the banking institutions of our country—they protect not only the individual but the entire business structure from the depressing effects of scarce circulating medium.

With the credits established by a sound bank a few thousand dollars in real cash transacts all the business of a large city; without the bank business would stagnate while men counted money in their various business transactions.

That the purchaser of this franchise or privilege, or any successor, or assignee of such purchaser, shall repair and make good all damages to the streets, public property and public places in said city occasioned by the location, construction, operation or maintenance of the lighting and power equipment, and all of said equipment used along, on, or under the public streets, public places and public property shall be erected, maintained and constructed in the usual neat, safe substantial, and workmanlike manner.

Any repairs on the streets, public ways or side-walks of the City rendered necessary by the erection or maintenance of poles or caused by the erection or maintenance of said plant shall be done by and at the expense of the purchaser. All the wires upon poles shall be not less than twenty-two feet above the ground or street and shall be placed at a greater or less height above the ground or street and when and wherever so directed by the City, or its authorized agent. All wires carrying electric current shall be so maintained at all times as not to endanger life, and all wires, conductors and appliances for the transmission of electric current shall be thoroughly insulated and shielded, and when the said insulation or covering on said wires becomes too thin or injured by age, or otherwise, as not to be safe, said wires shall be replaced by other wires, which meet the requirements of the best engineering requirements.

The minimum charge for power $1.50 per month per meter, and $1.00 for each horse power or fraction thereof connected. It is to be the duty of the purchaser of this franchise to render bill for light and power to all their customers monthly and not later than the 3rd of the succeeding month. Whenever a revision or change of rates and charges is adopted by the Council, as above provided they shall be in effect for at least two years from the time they become effective.

The purchaser is to allow a representative of the City, to be named by the Council, free access, at any time, to their plant and books and accounts for inspection, to ascertain if said rates and charges are reasonable and fair.

The service to the inhabitants of the City shall be continuous, that is 24 hours service, during the entire term of this franchise.

For failure to furnish lights or the amount of lights that may be contracted for by the said City, at any time, a deduction shall be made in the price to be paid equal to twice the amount agreed to be paid for each lamp so failing to furnish light to the required standard during the time of such failure; but when such failure may be caused by strikes, fire or other calamity not possible to be avoided, the only deduction that shall be made, shall be the proportional part of the contract price for the time of failure.

If the two cannot agree as to the third appraiser then the judge of the 13th Judicial District of Kentucky shall name the third appraiser.

SECTION No. 6.

That this franchise or privilege is created, granted and shall continue for a period of 10 years from and after the date it is made effective by the ratification and approval of its sale as hereinafter provided. This franchise shall not be exclusive, but said City shall have the right to dispose of and grant other franchises for the same purpose whenever desired.

All of the provisions of this franchise shall apply to any successor or assigns of the purchaser of said franchise.

SECTION No. 8.

Any One of Them.
Any bond is a good bond as long as its market value is above par and the interest on it is paid regularly.

Cosmic Dust.
It has been only lately discovered that cosmic dust forms layers at the bottom of the deepest seas. Between Honolulu and Tahiti, at a depth of 2,350 fathoms—over two miles and a half—a vast layer of this material exists.

Musical Note.
A very deaf old lady, walking along the street, saw an Italian turning a peanut roaster. She stood looking at it awhile, shook her head and said: "No, I shan't give you any money for such music as that. I can't hear any of the tunes, and besides it smells as if there were something burning inside!"—The Congregationalist.

According to B. L. T.
"The so-called human race appears to its best advantage, perhaps its only advantage, in work. The race is not ornamental, nor is it over-bright, having only enough wit to scrape along with. Work is the best thing it does, and when it seeks to avoid this, its reason for existence, disappears."—Chicago Tribune.

Explains Salmon's Jump.
The bureau of fisheries says that at the bottom of a fall there is usually a very deep well. The salmon swim to the extreme bottom of this well, and if they have sufficient depth of water to give force to get the power to jump, they do so by swimming very fast and rushing out. This force mechanically causes them to jump the falls.

Volta Father of Battery.
Alessandro Volta, an Italian inventor, is the father of the electric battery, his name being honored in the naming of the unit of electric energy, the volt.

The Largest Butterfly.
The largest known moth or butterfly in the world is the Great Atlas Moth of India. With wings outstretched it measures nearly a foot across from tip to tip.

Legal Fiction.
A fiction in law is an assumption made for the purpose of justice though the same fact could not be proved and may be literally untrue, and it is a rule that a fiction of law shall work no wrong. The fictitious characters of John Doe and Richard Roe for the purposes of various actions are well known.

"The Angelus" was painted by Jean Francois Millet, a French landscape painter, in 1859. It was sold by him for 500 francs (about $100). In 1890 the painting was purchased for $150,000 and placed in the Louvre.

Surely Excellent Memory.

Ravages of the Bookworm.

In the earliest writings we find mention of the ravages of the bookworm. Evenus, who lived about 450 B. C., is the earliest author known to write of its ravages. Horace, Ovid, Pliny, Martial and Lucian also wrote of him.

Eagle on His Native Heath.

High above the ground the eagle floats on his red-brown wings, while the white-barred feathers of his tail are spread out fanwise as a rudder to steer his course. His piercing eye is searching the heather far below. Suddenly he swoops. Next moment he is rising again swiftly and strongly with a mountain hare held fast in his talons. The great wings beat the air now with long, powerful strokes, carrying him rapidly towards the hungry family that is waiting for him in the eyrie.—Exchange.

The Local Editor—"Not much. But my compositor, in setting up the ad of your lecture on the 'Cosmic Forces,' left the 's' out of 'Cosmic.'"

Biased Opinion.

A Scotch preacher says clergymen make the best husbands and artists the worst. He puts army and navy officers next to the top in his list and poets next to the last. The tired business man isn't even mentioned. We suspect the Scotch preacher has no contributing poets or artists in his congregation.

Lunatics as Witnesses.

The testimony of a lunatic is sometimes of real value in a court of law. While he may suffer delusions regarding persecution of himself, he seldom if ever has delusions about the persecutions of some one else. Therefore, if a man who has been an inmate of an asylum makes charges that some other patient was ill-treated, his evidence is worth hearing.

The Great Horny.

Who-o-o-o! This bird is a great horned owl. He has large yellow eyes, like a cat, and a grasping disposition. He takes such a hold, in fact, that people need several thicknesses of leather in their gloves before they pick him up. He is a big bird and is often seen throughout the winter. His actions are mainly beneficial. He preys on rodents and vermin, and is a friend of man. You would be doing wrong to kill an owl.—Exchange.

Announcement

We are authorized to announce Hon. Ralph Gilbert a candidate to succeed himself in Congress, subject to the action of the Democratic primary, August 5, 1922.

Many parents complain that as their children grow older they cast off their obedience to parental law and lose their respect for parental authority.

But the child is not alone to be censured.

The parent who does not demand respect and obedience in the beginning will not receive it in the end.

Humoring and coddling does not produce either. Instead, it creates selfishness, ingratitude and ultimate indifference.

Soviet Russia has an army of 1,600,000 men, well armed, well equipped, well drilled, and efficiently officered, capable of taking the field upon a moment's notice.

How long will these men, trained for war, continue in the path of peace when the fumes of another war are in the very air they breathe?

Any child can ask the question, but the wisest of men cannot answer.

Perhaps that nickel you give in church makes you feel good. Make it a dollar and you will feel bully.

Money given to a church is well spent. It returns to you many fold.

Think of the good old days when you were a child in Sunday school, and of the lessons you learned and have never forgotten.

Others contributed the money then—it is your turn now.

The church and the Sunday school are doing the same for your children and for all of the children of the community that other churches did for you when you were young. Churches cannot live on nickels, and communities cannot prosper without churches. Make it a dollar the next time.

Manners and Boys

The ill mannered boy invariably becomes an ill mannered man.

An ill mannered man is not often successful in a business which requires that he come into daily contact with the buying public.

People who spend their own money want to receive courtesy as well as the value of that money. They do not care to pay for a grouch or a grunt.

School teachers are always endeavoring to improve the manners of their pupils, but they find it a difficult task where manners are not taught in the home.

These are every day facts—not theories, or a sermon.

The Religious

Vagabond

The religious tramp is a phenomenon of a serious nature for the churches. He is not a foe to religion. He is, indeed, a believer, in a way, although he asserts with a pseudo-liberality that "one church is as good as another." He travels around on the "special services" which one church after another serves up to secure a crowd. The churches often do not go behind the returns. There are crowds and there are crowds. The church tramp is a Christian who refuses to assume any responsibilities. He does not want to work regularly. He does not want to give regularly, though he drops a chance nickel into the plate. His attitude is one of unconcern with regard to the welfare of the churches. He gets his amusement and his sociability from the churches at the minimum of expense. He asks for no more. Just now in many communities the churches are actively competing for the presence of the church tramp. With concerts and secular lectures and moving pictures of doubtful religious value, they seek to bring the floaters to their places of worship. Their success is as transient as is the interest of the people who come. The cure for church tramps is a serious attitude on the part of the church. Smaller audiences may follow such an attitude, but they will be audiences yielding a more permanent harvest to religion. The serious-minded pastor may not be known just now as a crowd-getter, but will be known in the end as a church-builder. Meanwhile, the honest doubter outside the church is offered by the flippancy in the face of problems which to him are of life-and-death importance. When the church makes its appeal to truth-seekers and not to the sensation-seekers, it will be a stronger church.—The Christian Century.

Why Not a Rural Nurse for Your County?

(Southern Agriculturist)

At the close of the War the Garrard County, Ky., Red Cross Society found a fund of $2,000 in its treasury despite the fact that a large amount of comforts and supplies had been poured into the stream of aids for our soldiers.

Permission came from headquarters for the sum to be used in the manner the local organization deemed best, so long as it was spent to promote better health. After due deliberation, it was decided to employ a Rural Nurse.

The present nurse took up the work on September first, 1920. Her first year's salary came wholly from the Red Cross. During 1921 an appropriation of five hundred dollars was made by the fiscal court and three hundred was paid by the county school board. The Lancaster Board of Education appropriated one hundred dollars. Arrangements are now completed for this year's amount.

Many schools have been closed every year because of contagious diseases—sometimes every school reporting forced closing at some time during the year. Last year there were only two, in one of which the teacher contracted diphtheria, and the other had to be closed because of the inability of the nurse to reach them.

During May a trachoma clinic was held by a specialist. Forty-four were found to be affected with the disease and eighteen operations were performed.

Four patients had tonsils and adenoids removed at the clinic, one had adenoids only, while 200 were advised as to their needs for removal of tonsils or adenoids or glasses needed to correct defective vision.

Six cases were presented for hospital care, in free beds. These patients had this care for from two weeks to a year.

One of these was a young colored boy, the eldest of a poor hard-working man's eight children. He was suffering from some affection of the skin which made him a very repulsive sight as well as caused him much suffering. He was placed in a hospital for diagnosis and treatment. After a year he returned home for a visit but returned to the hospital where he had learned to make himself quite useful, was put on the pay roll and is still very happy.

One case was an old man living in a little shack, alone, and dying of cancer of the liver. He was removed to a hospital where he was given proper care until death came.

Two patients were operated on for cataracts. One of these had been practically blind for fifteen years, submitted to an operation and has regained some vision. He is the father of six small children.

Two children with tubercular hips have been treated in free beds.

Since the first of the year classes have been conducted in practical nursing. Two classes have been organized, one being especially for the benefit of the business women of the town. It is hoped that groups throughout the county will take advantage of this opportunity.

The entire family of a tenant was stricken with typhoid fever early in the year. A room in the court house was fitted up to serve as an emergency ward and the family was taken there where they could be nursed until they recovered. The services and advice of the nurse are available to those in better circumstances as well as to the humbler classes. Those who are financially able are expected to pay a fee into the Red Cross fund.

May the good work spread until every rural community can have the practical, disease-checking, comfort-dispensing hand of a rural nurse!

Waiting For Jesus

(Mamie Sebastian)

One spring morning little Virginia Howard lay staring out of the low curtainless window of the little log house in Willow Valley—She could not stir nor even raise her little head as the fall had proven too serious to her little weak back. So she lay very quietly, watching the heavy mist gradually roll away, until the sky became beautifully blue and clear.

The robins were singing so extravagantly that the old maple near the window nodded its approval and the violets opened their mouths real wide to take in their refreshing morning drink of sunshine.

Virginia was thinking of the many happy hours she had spent with the birds under the dear old maple in her swing—and how long it seemed since she had gone to the garden with her mother to gather flowers—But now she must spend the rest of her life on the little white cot. Even all these thoughts did not trace the sunshine from the dear little face.

Virginia was a lovely, tiny little girl with golden brown hair, her eyes were as blue as the Violets and her voice most as sweet as the Robins, and skin so transparent that the blue veins could be easily traced on her temples. "Good morning, dearie," said a sweet voice as a gentle form bent over the little white cot. "I've come to help you get well." Virginia turned her little face questioningly at the nurse, who had just arrived to take care of the little patient. "Mother said you were coming," said Virginia smiling sweetly as she reached out her little thin arms to greet her.

"I'm so sorry for you, dearie," the nurse spoke sympathetically, "but you don't seem to care. How can you be so happy?"

"Oh, I'm very happy when I'm not suffering, very few sick girls have a kind, good mother to care for them and lots of friends to bring nice things every day—then she hugged her little rag doll tight in her arms and smiling with a meaning that Angels only understand, she said, "and I'm waiting for Jesus" looking at a picture on the wall, of Jesus blessing little children and saying: "Suffer them to come unto me." Mother read just yesterday to me, in the Bible, where Jesus passed amidst sick people and made them well, and she said that he would come to every one who asked him, and if we love and trust him he would take us with him to heaven, and last night I asked him to come and make me well so I could go and tell Nellie Rice and Rosa Perkins and other little girls about him and if it best for me to not get well, I want to go with him to heaven, where there's no sickness, nor blind, nor lame, and Oh, I just can't hardly wait until he comes.

"And you really think he will come?"

"Oh, I know he will," pointing to her Bible on the table—"you see it says so more than once in that dear book and every word is sure true—that's how I know."

The days passed on and Virginia grew no better, yet she was patient for Christ's sake.

One quiet Sunday afternoon she lay listening to the sweet music from the little chapel, where men, women, and children had gathered to worship God, with a sweet little prayer on her lips to bear the suffering of the night. She was thinking how sweet it would be if Jesus should come and take her home—then she heard the children singing, "Jesus loves me, this I know for the Bible tells me so." Her little trembling arms were held high in the air. "What is it dearie?" said the nurse as she heard Virginia murmuring something—"Oh, wasn't it he?" I thought that Jesus was passing and I wanted to be sure he finds me—I've waited so long—and the little white hands dropped by her side.

Mrs. Howard was walking noiselessly across the room to kiss her little pet good night—when she noticed that her little eyes did not greet her as usual. "Do not dare to wake her, dear little thing," she has suffered so much," said the nurse. Mrs. Howard was not satisfied to leave her yet, so looking more closely, she said, "I do believe Jesus has already passed this way," and she was right for Jesus had indeed passed that way and finding Virginia, he loved her so much that he lifted the little tired lamb to his bosom.

A Lake on Shipboard.
When one contemplates that so much energy is exerted to the end of keeping the water out of a ship, it looms up as an astonishing fact that there is of necessity a great deal of water within the hull of the vessel. A modern liner has enough water in her hull to make a good-sized lake. About 1,740 tons of water is carried by a big passenger vessel. The drinking water for the use of passengers amounts to 550, and there are about 830 tons of sea water being used for ballast. The six boilers contain 360 tons. The tanks are situated between the double hulls of the vessel.

Visitors to the Savoy chapel, off the Strand, are often asked to look at the "old hour-glass" on the pulpit. It is not "old," for it was not placed there until Queen Victoria restored the chapel in 1837; it is not an "hour-glass," for the sand runs for 18 minutes only. That period is said to have been chosen by the queen as a protest against long sermons.—Christian Science Monitor.

LAVENDER PIECE

By MILDRED WHITE

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union

Aunt Priscilla spread the quilt on the bed and she and her niece bent above it.

"I like the lavender piece," said Priscilla, the young.

"My, what a time grandmother must have had sewing those pieces of muslin and calico together—wasted time," added this member of a later generation.

"I don't know that it was wasted time," Priscilla replied. "The sewing kept your grandmother occupied and content. Neither you nor I appreciate the quilt as we should. Why, it is all woven stories. Each dainty piece represents some memory."

"Are there memories of yours there, Priscilla?" asked the girl.

She and the sweet-faced aunt were like companions of the same age. The elder woman's eyes grew softly reminiscent. With a light finger she touched the lavender square.

"The day I wore that dress," she said, "my true love first met me. I wore it also the day we said good-by."

"Tell me the story," said the girl abruptly.

"There is little to tell, dear. I met Homer Reid and my heart flew out to him. He was all my youthful dreams had fancied—the realization of my ideal. And I never cared for anyone else. He admired my little lavender dress that first enchanted evening and always after, because of its color, he called me Violet. When his visits ceased I laid the dress away. The last night that he came I had the dress on, I remember, and when he said, 'Good-night Violet,' I thought that his backward glance was very tender. He was leaving the next morning for New York. When he came home again he was altogether absorbed in work, while I became more and more occupied with my invalid grandmother. I was glad then that the making of the quilt afforded her happiness."

"Mr. Reid, the lawyer, is not married," remarked Priscilla irrelevantly. "Probably the stupid has loved you all the time. Yours is a tame love story, Priscilla, and could not possibly happen in the days of the modern woman. She'd get after him and want to know what was the matter, which would be better for both parties concerned," Priscilla smiled.

"The modern woman such as you undoubtedly would," she replied.

It was several days later that the lawyer, going home at evening, met with a pretty picture. A girl in a lavender dress was engaged in picking roses in an old-fashioned garden across the hedge.

"If you will come into the garden, Mr. Reid," cheerfully invited this young person, "I will give you some roses for your mother."

A gracious child, thought the lawyer, and stepped inside.

"I will have to hurry," she explained. "Bertie is coming to take me for a ride."

"Bertie?" politely questioned Homer Reid.

Priscilla nodded. "My sweetheart, as Aunt Priscilla would call him. Bertie thinks lots of Aunt Priscilla. He thinks I look like her."

The niece glanced up sidewise. "Do you? Of course you must know Miss Priscilla Dean."

"I used to know her very well indeed," the lawyer answered gravely. He took the roses and went thoughtfully away.

"What's the idea?" asked Bertie over the hedge, "aiming to be an old man's darling?"

"Jealous again," mocked Priscilla merrily. "Bertie, be glad you live in the present age."

Priscilla Dean looked unusually attractive when upon the following Sabbath she emerged from the church edifice with her young niece. Miss Dean, always becomingly attired, had acquired some added charm in the lavender frock of her niece's choice.

Blithely, Priscilla the young, nodded to a distinguished gentleman who passed them.

"How did she roses go?" she questioned humbly.

Priscilla Dean caught her breath in confusion, but Homer Reid as humbly replied.

"Mother thought the roses were great; she wants you to come and see her. Though it's a good deal to ask youth to companion old age."

He fell into step at their side.

"Maybe Aunt Priscilla will go instead," the girl suggested. "I am to be married soon and I'm busy."

Smiling, she hurried on ahead to her Bertie.

Homer Reid gazed into the sweet face near his own.

"Priscilla," he said slowly, "you are today the very girl I met and loved long ago. My Violet that the busy years took from me."

Priscilla glanced over her shoulder.

"Bertie," she remarked, "I'm going to have some one sew a piece of this dress I am wearing into a quilt."

"Nuttie?" answered Bertie tenderly.

Not So Bad, After All.

"Do you ever want to leave the farm?"

"Yes," said Mr. Cobble. "Now and then I get to feeling that way, and when I do I run down to the city for a few days. After I've been elbowed stepped on, hawked at by traffic police men, insulted by head waiters and held up by bellhops I set out for the home place in a pretty cheerful frame of mind."

The vases which we now use for flowers are a survival of the ancient days of Grecian conviviality, when the wealthier people had wine cups of every conceivable size and form. The original name of these cups was "vase," and designers vied with one another to produce intricate designs. With the passing of the great feasts, the vases were used for ornamental purposes. The flowers were added to decorate the vase.

SLASH PINE YIELDS CASH WHILE GROWING

Profit of 6 to 12 Per Cent Interest Has Been Made.

Trees Grow Rapidly and Lumber Market Is Fast Taking Material of Smaller Size and Poorer Grades—Bulletin Free.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Slash pine grows rapidly and yields revenue in turpentine gum at an early age while it is growing into timber, says the United States Department of Agriculture in Farmers' Bulletin 1256, Slash Pine, prepared by Wilbur R. Mattoon, forest examiner, and now ready for distribution. Well-stocked stands of young growth, after making liberal deductions for the cost of taxes and fire-protection during the period of growth, show profits of 6 to 12 per cent compound interest on an investment of $5 an acre.

A large number of owners in the South are deriving good profits from low-priced lands by using them for the production of timber and grazing of stock. If fire is excluded, the range yields more of the tender annual grasses and legumes which are more nutritious than the hardy perennials like wire and broom-sedge grasses, and the influence of the protective soil cover stimulates tree growth to a marked degree.

If the timber in the forest pasture becomes too dense, the owner has an easy remedy by first working the larger trees for turpentine and then cutting them for lumber, ties, posts, pulpwood, or firewood. Open stands of slash pine, with 75 to 150 trees an acre measuring up to ten inches on the stump, induce a rapid growth of the individual tree and admit a good growth of grass. In such stands more turpentine to the tree is secured than in overcrowded ones, and the grazing of live stock can be carried on successfully.

Second-growth slash pine stands, twenty to forty years old, frequently contain from 80 to 100 trees to the acre. At 20 cents a cup, less than the price received in 1919 for turpentine rights on the Florida national forest, such stands would be worth for turpentine $20 to $25, and with pine stumpage at $5 a thousand the timber would be worth $25 to $30, or an average money return of from $1.50 to $2 an acre yearly. Observations and experience in such older sections of the country as New England indicate that good financial returns may be derived in relatively short periods from second-growth forests if handled under a proper system of protection, turpentering and cutting, the bulletin points out.

Because slash pine grows rapidly and the lumber market is fast taking material of smaller size and poorer grades, the day is approaching when good stumpage prices can be obtained for young and second-growth timber. Copies of the bulletin may be had free upon application to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

GETTING STAND OF ALFALFA

Iowa Farmers Secure Best Fields by Seeding During August and Without Nurse Crop.

Experience of many Iowa farmers and of the Iowa agricultural experiment station is that the surest method of getting a stand of alfalfa is to seed during August without a nurse crop on land which has been plowed in early summer and cultivated at ten-day intervals to kill weeds and conserve moisture. Objections to this method are that the land does not yield returns during the season preceding seeding, that it requires additional labor, and that grasshoppers frequently damage the alfalfa considerably on small acreages. However, general experience in Iowa justifies the method above suggested as it produces the best fields of alfalfa.

ADVANTAGES OF CULTIVATION

It Helps to Keep Weeds Down and Conserves Moisture Necessary for Vegetables.

Keep the hand cultivator going to preserve a dust mulch and to kill weeds. Either pull or hoe the weeds out of the vegetable rows. The best time to kill weeds is when they have just pushed through the top of the ground. Frequent shallow cultivation will do this as well as conserve moisture.

Somebody's mother is suffering tonight! The scourge of rheumatism has wrecked her body, limping and suffering, bent forward, she sees but the common ground, but her aged heart still belongs to the stars! Does anybody care? S. S. S. is one of the greatest blood-purifiers known, and it helps build more blood cells. Its medicinal ingredients are purely vegetable. It never disarranges the stomach. It is, in fact, a splendid tonic, a blood maker, a blood enricher. It banishes rheumatism from joints, muscles and the entire body. It builds firm flesh. It is what somebody's mother needs tonight! Mother, if you can not go out to get a bottle of S. S. S. yourself, surely somebody in your family will. Somebody, get a bottle of S. S. S. now! Let somebody's mother begin to feel joyful again tonight. Maybe, maybe it's your mother! S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores, in two sizes. The 6 S. S. S. do it. It will build you up, too! Larger size is the more economical.

First Duty of the Poet.
Poets do not write for poets alone, but for men. Unless, therefore, we are advocates for that admiration which subsists upon ignorance, and that pleasure which arises from hearing what we do not understand, the poet must descend from his supposed height; and, in order to excite national sympathy, he must express himself as other men express themselves.—Wordsworth.

Mozart Memorized Music.
Only once, so far as is known, have the secrets of the music used in St. Peter's at Rome, been violated. Mozart is reputed to have memorized one of the Masses while hearing it sung. Copies of the music are, as a matter of fact, so carefully guarded that members of the Vatican choir seldom hand them—if at all—at other times than during practice.

Pride and Vanity.
I would much rather fight pride than vanity, because pride has a stand-up way of fighting. You know where it is. It throws its black shadow on you, and you are not at a loss where to strike. But vanity is that delusive, that insectivorous, that multiplied feeling; and men that fight vanity are like men that fight widges and butterflies. It is easier to chase them than to hit them.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Distinction Few Would Covet.
The distinction of being the only woman to be married in a blazing church probably belongs to a recent bride in England. When the bridal party arrived at the church they found the building ablaze and a small army of firemen deluging the flames with water. Nothing daunted, the prospective bride declared that, fire or no fire, she would not leave the church unwed, and to the accompaniment of flying sparks and clouds of smoke the marriage ceremony was performed.

LOUISE'S CAR

By ELIZABETH McNAUGHT

© 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate

The streets were treacherously icy and the heels on the patent leather pumps of Louise's Sunday and everyday shoes were high. Gingerly, she tripped along, pausing momentarily at the junction of three automobile-infested streets to await an opportunity to gain the other side.

Glaring headlights were to the right of her, more to the left and countless more behind and beyond.

Life had been a struggle for Louise; it still was, yet she realized that her present mode of living in a single furnished room, with housekeeping privileges, was really an upward step. She was at least happy, and—well, what more could one desire?

"For the love of Pete, look out!" roared a hoarse voice, almost in her ear. Something terrible had happened to something and Louise knew she was the something. The girl's mind was quite clear. She knew she was lying in the mud, ignominiously, like a stray cat, and her fur coat was likely ruined; and then it came to her that the kindest, sweetest voice she had ever heard was consoling her and two very willing arms were making frantic efforts to retrieve her befuddled, perhaps dismembered, anatomy from the mud.

"Poor little girl," he was saying. "It was all my fault," and then most sternly, "Let her alone, you; I'll take care of her."

He placed her among the velvet cushions in the large tonneau of his magnificent car and a moment later the girl knew she was being rushed to the hospital. She cast a critical eye over the interior of the car. A hummer, to be sure, she thought, and just her luck, too. Her eyes glanced toward the proud head, yet he was not too proud to drive his own car.

Her charming Sir Gallahad did not desert her as abruptly as she had expected. In fact, he returned to the hospital day after day to inquire about the fractured ankle. He was the quiet, courteous gentleman.

"They tell me you may go home tomorrow," he announced by way of greeting one morning. "and, honestly, I'm sorry."

"So'm I," replied Louise, and an expression of extreme sadness overbadowed the thin, pleasant face. "very, very sorry."

"Sorry? Why?" he asked in surprise.

"Oh, just because—" she hesitated, and he, noticing a very small tear quivering on the black eyelash, made a hasty departure, flinging back buoyantly, "Well, so long. I'll see that you get home safely and comfortably."

That would be the end, thought Louise.

When the girl faced the large machine the following day it seemed even more formidable than her imagination or her memory of it conceived.

Very few words were spoken during the trip, mainly because of the fact that he was without a chauffeur and so was once again forced to drive the car. Louise was glad that he at least was not a parasite. In no time at all he was helping her up the gray stone steps that led to her front door.

Suddenly, almost impulsively, he asked, "Say, would you go to the movies with me some night?"

"Go to the movies?" In amazement. "Oh, of course, if you don't care for the movies I'll get tickets for symphony, or anywhere you say. I personally like the movies, but it's more or less habit. Having little time to spare, I run in when things get too dull."

"When things get too dull?" she repeated. Then, eagerly, "Please, just what do you do?"

"I'm a taxi driver."

"Well, I'll be jiggered!" In relief, the girl's tired expression changed to repose and she was very sweet and appealing in her natural mood of laughing and crying and talking all in one breath. "And I thought you were rich and educated and oh, ever so wealthy and as far above me as the moon, and now, isn't that a hummer?" she demanded, pointing to the car.

"Hummer nothing! But that's my car and it's as good as any old hummer. I practically made it myself. It boasts parts from every second-hand shop in the city. I can't very well name it unless, perhaps, I might call it Louise."

"Oh, please do," she whispered from the depths of his raccoon shoulder. "Don't things always turn out perfectly grand?"

Men Who Win Success.

Success is always attained by men who will work and build and have an ideal and vision. A fellow who does his own thinking and will not side-step is the man who will arrive. To achieve your ambition, be a good listener, use your eyes, study human nature, learn to think. Thought rules the world, makes men and is the seat of action. Some folks study all their life and at death have learned everything but how to think. Learning without thought is labor lost. Skill is developed in the corner. The desert sands are breed of the prophet. The mountain fastness develops the seer; out of obscurity come our Presidents; from the forests come our preachers; from the wilderness come reformers.

Mrs. Henpeck—And you call yourself a man?
Mr. Henpeck—Certainly, my dear; that is—er—if you permit me to.

The Folly of Wedding Beauty.

It must be dreadful to be the husband of a notoriously beautiful woman, three-quarters of whose waking days is devoted to keeping her face up to the mark. How humiliating to hear one's self referred to as "the husband of that beautiful Mrs. Dash, my dear." Such an ordinary looking man, too! A few short years of such bitter experience would be enough to make any man wish that instead of a wife he had acquired a bit of old Worcester china (not sauce), which is just as good to look at, wears better, and costs less.—London Mail.

Rare Example of Courtesy.

When a very young girl, in order to reach my place of employment each day, I had to walk quite a distance after leaving the street car. One morning it was raining heavily and I had no umbrella. As I alighted from the car a young man stepped up to me and quietly walked along by my side, shielding me from the rain with his umbrella. I was very shy and did not know what to say or do, so said nothing. When we arrived at my destination, I tried to thank him, and he gravely bowed and went on his way.—Exchange.

Can Be No Compromise.

It is a truism, but one often practically forgotten, that there is no medium between truth and falsehood.—Archbishop Whateley.

A Walkover.

Among the many amusing stories which Mr. Eugene Corri has at his command is one concerning a prize fight which occurred in America. One of the contestants had been instructed by his father to cable the result as soon as the fight was over. The son duly sent off the following message: "Won easily. Seventy-five rounds."—Tatler (London.)

Romans First Pleasure Tourists.

Traveling for pleasure came into vogue in the peaceful years of the Roman empire, says the Scientific American. Historic places and natural curiosities were sought out and famous groves and grottoes visited. The Romans seemed to have preferred these gentler aspects of nature, and had little appreciation of towering heights and plunging canyons.
